The secret is that you don't have to settle for the examples below. You can combine your choice of table tops and legs or other supports. Most combinations are possible and you get to design a table that really suits you. The standard height of the computer table is between 50-70 cm. In this range, most people should be able to find a height that fits. Depending on how tall you are, and what kind of table chair you use, you can determine which height is most comfortable for you. A few general guidelines for a good table height are: When you sit, the table should reach up to the elbows. You should be able to comfortably rest your hands on the surface at approximately a 90-degree angle. Under the table you should have about 35-40 cm from the top of the knees to the bottom of the table. And from the bottom of the table to the floor should be roughly 60 cm. Remember that your height and your sitting position can affect the optimal table height, but since ergonomics can lead a long way to supporting your body and averting fatigue, it's worth spending a little time. Try sitting at a table or dining table and measuring height so you can choose. What type of tables can I find at IKEA? Each of you, hobby and study work are a little different. Our tables reflect this very diversity, which is designed for different needs and preferences. At IKEA you'll find game tables optimized for player setup, ergonomic office desks, space-saving corner tables, and everything in between. Many of our tables are height adjustable, which means you can switch between standing and sitting all day long. Other tables have folding table tops, allowing you to adjust the surface of the space if your project gets messy with paperwork and stationery. Small tables for children are designed to creativity and help with homework, tasks, tables with drawers to organize the breeze. From rustic wood to shiny white, there is a table for every style, purpose and project. Productivity has never felt more comfortable.
